Low-Fidelity Prototype

The design takes inspiration from many other shopping cart websites, especially Amazon. Many sites utilize a pattern where the order summary is highlighted on the right of the screen, while the left of the screen contains details about the products in the cart. This way, users can both investigate exactly what has been added to their cart, but also obtain a quick summary of their potential purchase at a glance. This creates the general layout for our shopping cart. The page does not contain other information, as we hope to guide the user into making a purchase, so we minimize potential distractions.
